

Study Plan

Written by Winnie Wang

I have not made my career plans yet, but I know having good English abilities will help me realize my ideals no matter what I want to do in the future. If I am lucky enough to enter the Department of English language, literature and Linguistics in Providence University, I will do my best to polish up my English. I'll make use of every source around me and make my university life wonderful. The following is my plan:

Short-term plan:

I will keep spending all my leisure time sharpening my English ability. I'll make it a rule to listen to ICRT will be an effective means to strengthen my listening ability. In addition, I'll read various magazines like 'Studio Classroom', 'Times', 'CNN', etc. I believe what I do will be of great help.

Mid-term plan:

As a freshman, I will preview my lessons and read material related to the courses, which will better my studies. In addition, I will go to the library in my spare time. I can't wait to embrace the castle of knowledge. As the proverb goes, “Practice makes perfect.” I will make efforts to enhance my ability.

In the second year of college, I will focus on improving my ability in composition and translation. Meanwhile, I’ll participate in extracurricular activities to make my life more colorful and exercise regularly in order to stay healthy.

Long-term plan:

When I am a junior, I will do my best to pass the upper-intermediate level of GEPT and get good scores in TOFLE. By preparing for these tests, I will learn more and gain more.

In the final year of college, I will spend most of my time on schoolwork, preparing for advanced studies so that I can go to graduate school or study abroad.

I’m always curious about things around me, I’m sure I’ll be energetic, enthusiastic and concentrative during my college life. In the long run, I will try as hard as I can to realize my studying plans. With determination and guidance of my future professors, I am sure I can reach my goal. May all of you give me the chance to enter your school and make my dreams come true.
